Libya assassinated 'Moslem fanatic'

ARO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat's assassins "led by a Moslem fanatic" and are now being inquired, Vice President Hosni Mubarak said Wednesday. There is a long story behind all this, but I prefer to wait until the investigation is completed," Mubarak told reporters at an impromptu news conference after accepting the ruling of the nomination to succeed Sadat. The government scheduled a referendum next week in which Mubarak will be elected.

Egypt's defense minister was quoted as saying two of Sadat's assassins were civilians who masqueraded as soldiers to take to the military parade that ended in a bloodbath. Mubarak declined comment on the report, but said the assassination was "a criminal act undertaken by individuals who by no means a coup attempt." Mubarak was wearing a bandage around his left wrist, indicating he was wounded in the attack.

He told reporters he and Sadat were sitting side-by-side on a reviewing stand Tuesday, watching planes fly by overhead. I sensed the president stand, I stood, too, and to my utter surprise and disbelief, I saw a man throw a grenade at the stand, then gunfire broke out," he said.

I was hurled to the ground and so was the president but I could not believe what my eyes had seen. The president was taken away in a helicopter.

The vice president reiterated his commitment to Sadat's policies and said the year-long emergency declared immediately after Sadat's death was being enforced "to protect the nation from any subversives."

Defense Minister Abdel Halim Abu Ghazala said one of the assassins was an officer, one was a retired reserve officer and the other two were civilians pretending to be soldiers, the newspaper Al Akhbar reported in its Thursday editions.

Abu Ghazala did not elaborate in the newspaper account on how the two civilians, reported to be veterans of Egypt's mandatory military service, got into the military ranks on parade. Another daily, the semi-official Al-Ahram, quoted Gen. Mahmoud el-Masry, commander of the Republican Guards, as saying three "traitors" left the truck when it reached the reviewing stand.

Thinking the men were approaching the stand to salute him, Sadat stood to return the salute. El-Masry was quoted as saying: While Sadat was standing, the fourth man, still in the truck, opened fire with an automatic rifle, hitting the president with his first shot, the guard commander was quoted as saying.

Israel pledges to continue peace process

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel said Wednesday that both Israel and Egypt, must pledge themselves to "the sacred trust" of completing the peace process begun by assassinated President Anwar Sadat. But doubts lingered whether the peace would last.

In a message to Vice President Hosni Mubarak, Sadat's apparent successor, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Sadat had been gunned down by "the enemies of peace."

"We are confident that the legacy of peace of Sadat will live on," Begin said. "This is a sacred trust we have to fulfill," the message said.

Uncertainty over the peace process clouded the future of Israel's relations with the new Egyptian government. Right-wing nationalists urged Israel to cancel plans for its final withdrawal from occupied Sinai Peninsula next April.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir told reporters that "if the peace process will continue, the Israeli withdrawal from Sinai will also continue. It depends on developments in Egypt."

Begin's Cabinet held an emergency meeting and heard the army intelligence chief, Maj. Gen. Yehoshua Saguy, give a confidential assessment of the impact of Sadat's assassination.

The shaken nation of Israel was mourning its most important friend in the Arab world whose the country virtually shut down for Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the most important day of the Jewish religious year.

President threatens appropriations veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's aides sent an unmistakable signal to Congress Wednesday that he intends to veto any appropriations bill. House-passed appropriations bills, and Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill conceded Republicans have the votes to make it pass.

"This appears to be the kind of bill he was talking about" when Reagan threatened to veto any budget-busting legislation, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said. He said the spending measure, for the departments of Labor, Education, and Health and Human Services, is $4 billion more than the limits Congress set earlier this year.

Reagan has yet to veto a bill.

The White House issued the threat as the GOP chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee said it was impossible to grant Reagan's request for a 1 percent across-the-board cut in non-defense domestic programs for 1982. Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., also said there was growing support among Democrats to do so.

Reagan's proposed $2 billion reduction of the defense budget.

Hartford said there was support on the committee for delaying cost-of-living increases in several benefit programs such as food stamps and pensions, at a savings of several billion.

Libya, Arab nations warned to 'stay out'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration warned Libya and other radical Arab nations on Wednesday that it "would view with great concern" any attempt to meddle with Egypt or otherwise fan instability in the Middle East.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee, expected to approve a resolution Wednesday to veto the AWACS deal. The deal will go through unless both houses of Congress vote to veto it by Nov. 1.

In a midday news conference, Haig declared the United States "would view with great concern" any attempt to meddle with Egypt or otherwise fan instability in the Middle East.

Haig pledged full support to the Egyptian government now headed by Hosni Mubarak, Sadat's hand-picked heir. Meanwhile, the Defense Department continued its order of late Tuesday calling for "boostered readiness" of U.S. Rapid Deployment Force and American warships in the Mediterranean.

The secretary of state also affirmed the administration's determination to sell AWACS radar planes and the $8.8-billion "package" now "more important than ever."

As Haig spoke, President Reagan met with virtually the entire Republican majority of the Senate in an attempt to reverse a congressional move against the sale.

Raise, criticism of Sadat fascinating, professor says

By LISA BARLOW Reporter

One of the fascinating things in my mind is the raising President Sadat and who is discrediting him both on the left and the right. Sadat's Middle East policy, Omar Kader said.

If you look at the pattern of it, the Israelis and the Americans are sorrowful and are saying a man has died, said Kader, assistant to the director of Family, Home and Social Services. "The Arabs are saying here is a traitor I sellout, a man who is subordinating his own and his people's interests to a foreign race," he said.

When question then arises, said Kader, what was that Sadat was doing right or wrong that used other ideas.

Why is it the Arab capitals the people in streets are jubilant that he was assassinated, he those in the United States and Israel are mourning? Kader asked.

He said, you can't say they are bloodthirsty, it is a violent society and they were fighting with some more violence — it had some things.

The meaning is in the Arab world: for the 30 years Arab nationalism had been the driving force among Arab groups. Sadat was the first to move in the Arab world to unite the Arab world in the nation in the ninth century wanted.

After Nasser's death, Kader continued, Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser was the one in the Arab world who was Arab. He decided an Arab in-

Iranians shut down ex-premier

BEHRUJ Labouni — The man who served as Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's first premier spoke out in Parliament on Wednesday against the mass executions of anti-government leftists, but Khomeini loyalists shut him down, then walked out and later called for his death, reports from Tehran said.

Following the speech by former Prime Minister Mohsen Bazargan, merchants in Tehran staged a demonstration demanding that Bazargan and other "liberals" be thrown out of the parliament, or Majlis, the constitutional Tehran Radio said.

Domestic spying eyed by House

WASHINGTON — The House Intelligence Committee pressed the Reagan administration Wednesday for more justifications for plans to allow the CIA to spy on U.S. groups, chairman Edward P. Boland said.

The panel heard a closed-door, two-hour briefing from Deputy CIA Director Bobby R. Inman on a proposed presidential order.

Afterwards, Boland, a Massachusetts Democrat, said there were a number of additional questions to which Inman and CIA General Counsel George Clark promised answers by next week.

Airlines fly into price war

NEW YORK — American and Trans World airlines cut fares on their busiest routes Wednesday, joining United in price wars that could continue to snarl autumn demands and defuse predictions of higher fares during the air controllers strike.

American and TWA announced similar price cuts to defend their shares of the transcontinental and midcontinental markets against United, which ignited the latest round of cuts Tuesday.

Unlike many fare wars, this one involves the airlines' regular coach fares rather than their discount fares that carry a number of restrictions.

It also is unusual because it comes at a time when airlines are operating fewer-than-normal flights because of the controllers strike.

AT&T deregulation bill approved

WASHINGTON — A bill designed to deregulate the telephone industry and spur competition for the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was approved 94-1 Wednesday by the Senate.

Passage of the measure came after more than five years of work and four days of debate. It now goes to the House, where leaders have said they intend to complete action on a similar bill early next year.

Republicans reversing arms sale decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — While a House vote to reject the $8.5 billion arms sale to Iran was held off Wednesday, President Reagan pressed the Senate's Republican majority with some success Wednesday to reverse the congressional tide against the deal.

"I need you, my country and the world need you on this decision," the president was quoted as telling 43 Republican senators at a White House meeting that coincided with the House Foreign Affairs committee vote to cancel the transaction.

Prevention prompted

25 students report rash of obscene calls

A rash of obscene phone calls received by BYU students during the last month has prompted preventive measures by BYU Security Police, according to Capt. Wes Sherwood.

Since Sept. 11, Security Police have received 25 reports of obscene phone calls, Investigator Brian Anderson said.

"We are working with representatives of Mountain Bell and using technical equipment to track down offenders," Sherwood said. "The use of Mountain Bell's equipment has aided in catching and prosecuting people in the past."

An obscene phone call is punishable by six months in jail and a $300 fine, he said.

Students can help eliminate such calls, Anderson said. "The best defense against an obscene phone call is to hang up without saying a word. Many times the caller is seeking a reaction from his victim and it is best not to give a reaction."

If the caller doesn't say anything, hang up. If the caller makes an obscene remark, hang up immediately," he said. "The caller wants attention, so don't give it to him. If the caller says anything, it's just hang up and call Security Police."

Students should also avoid using the phone for purposes of playing practical jokes on their friends, he said.

"On several occasions the jokes were not well received by the victims," Anderson said. "These jokes phone calls resulted in criminal charges being filed."

Reagan to miss Sadat's funeral; too dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will not attend the funeral of slain Egyptian leader Anwar Sadat because of fear for his own safety, but will send a delegation including all three living former American presidents, a spokesman said Wednesday.

President Richard M. Nixon, Gerald R. Ford and Jimmy Carter all agreed to go. They will be accompanied by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Reagan later issued a proclamation ordering the flow to halt at a U.S. installation home and abroad until Sadat's burial. "America has lost a close friend," the words he said, "a great statesman and mankind has lost a champion of peace," the president said.

Officials would not publicly discuss the grounds for their concern but indicated they were troubled by the uncertain political situation in Egypt, where Sadat was gunned down by members of his own army Tuesday.

A state funeral will be held in Cairo on Saturday.

Gergen said that in weighing safety factors, U.S. security agencies had been in touch with the Egyptian embassy in Cairo.

Asked why it was unsafe for Reagan to attend but acceptable for the three former presidents, Gergen said, "The president of the United States, the one who is the symbol of the United States, is not an American citizen."

Announced MX figures only arbitrary, not final

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Department assurances that 36 MX missiles will be deployed in existing Titan missile silos were only "examples," and final decisions will have to await an Air Force study, a top Pentagon official said Wednesday.

Marvin Atkins, the Defense Department's director of offensive space systems, said the study will define costs and benefits for placing the MX in Titan and Minuteman silos.

He said the study will not start before Oct. 21 and may take a year to complete.

There has been no decision whether to put them in Minuteman or Titan silos, or both, or how many missiles will be in place, Atkins said. The figures by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and other last week "were simply examples," he said.

"We need to find out how much additional protection, how much hardness against Soviet attack you can get for a given amount of money," said Atkins after a briefing for congressmen from Kansas and Arkansas, two of the three states where Titans are deployed.

This is an interim step to close windows of vulnerability at the mid-1980s. That part of the decision is based on the fact that we have learned a great deal about the technology of hardening silos and building new, hardened silos or reconstructing them, in the last few years," he said.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who organized the briefing in an effort to resolve confusion and contradictory statements about the Titans fate,

Area apartment owners claim misrepresentation

By JAMIE WARNOCK
Staff Writer

The president of the Utah County Apartment Association and owner of several student-apartment complexes in Provo, said he feels landlords in the Provo-Orem area have not been fairly represented in the past by the media.

In an interview with The Daily Universe, Paul Ruffner defended apartment owners against various editorials and cartoons the paper has run, saying the majority of landlords are fair with students.

"Every year The Daily Universe puts an article or cartoon that makes the apartment owners look bad," Ruffner said. "He was referring specifically to a cartoon that ran Sept. 17 on the editorial page.

Landlords fair

"I believe the majority of the landlords are fair with the students. I'm not saying that the landlords are all perfect, but there are some of the students. Both sides make mistakes," he said.

"Students misjudge and don't understand the landlords' complex financial problems in running an apartment," he said. "On the other hand, landlords don't understand students."

Ruffner said a big complaint students have about renting in this area is the amount they pay for rent. He said rent only went up, on the average, 85 from last year. "One dollar went for utilities, one for taxes and three for profit from last year's prices, which is not as high as the 12 to 13 percent Consumer Price Index," Ruffner said.

Inflation problems

Ruffner pegged inflation as a real problem that everyone, including apartment owners, must deal with. The cost of utilities is another reason for rent prices increasing, he said. "My gas bill has tripled in five years from $1,200 to $3,500 during the heat of August at La Chateau Apartments."

The Utah County Apartment Association encourages students to help the landlords conserve energy, thereby keeping rent increases lower for students in the future.

"I've been to my complexes and seen doors and windows open and the heat going full blast at the same time," he said.

Landlords for students

According to Ruffner the landlords are on the students' side. He said the landlords succeeded in defeating an attempt by Provo City to double garbage collection rates at apartment complexes.

"I saved us $120 a month which the students would eventually have had to pay."

Rental prices increased a great deal when BYU switched from a nine-month year to an eight-month year several years ago, Ruffner said. In other college towns the students sign contracts for one year and are responsible for renting the apartments if they leave when the school year is over," he said.

Housing Adjustment Board

To handle misunderstandings with students and landlords, BYU has a Housing Adjustment Board. Ruffner said the board is very effective in handling disputes between both parties.

The Housing Adjustment Board was created in 1959 and consists of one faculty board member from the high school appointed by President Jeffrey R. Holland, a landlord elected by the landlords in the area to represent them and a student appointed by the ASBYU president.

New scriptures indicate progress

By CATHY TIMMINS
Staff Writer

The newly published edition of the triple combination is representative of the overall progress of the Church, according to a member of the team that worked on the edition.

Robert J. Matthews, dean of the college of Religious Instruction at BYU, said the scripture corrections at a time when the church is moving forward in all areas. "We're changing our stride today, and affecting everything in the church," he said.

Matthews and two other members of the team under the direction of a First Presidency, he said, pointed to Matthews, most of mistakes corrected in the new version of the triple combination have been known for a long time. This is the first time in more than 100 years there has been a confluence other than the addition of new scriptures.

No corrections were made (in this edition) that had not been made to students of the scriptures many years," he said.

Matthews said most of the mistakes were typographical errors, changes are not that earth shattering," he said.

Because the scriptures were changed earlier, he said, the changes would have required new editions. Matthews worked on corrections of the triple combination with Ellis T. Rasmussen.

EW Egyptian leader tensely anti-Soviet

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence says Hosni Mubarak, heir apparent to ousted Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, is tensely anti-Soviet and "well-disposed toward the United States."

His appraisal was prepared prior to the attack on Tuesday and was being studied with interest by Pentagon officials attempting to forecast the future course of U.S.-Soviet relations. Mubarak, who has been Egyptian vice president since 1975, had been carefully monitored by Sadat to succeed him, the analysis former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger referred to Mubarak as "Western-oriented" "an intelligent man."

53-year-old former commander of the Egyptian Air Force, Mubarak was trained at a number of military academies and schools in the United States when Egypt was a close ally of Russia's. His intelligence report on Mubarak said he attended the prestigious Frunze Military Academy in Moscow, the Soviet General Staff College and bomber schools.

Year's wines better, but fewer

ST. EMILION, France (AP) — "It tastes a bit too much of water," Jean-Jacques Moueix grumbled, sampling one of the dark, blue grapes in his vineyard. "It will be good this year, but not as good as we hoped two weeks ago before the rains came."

Wine growers such as Moueix, here in the heart of Bordeaux country, are fretting about the weather, the labor problems involved in the harvest and, above all, the critics.

The early reviews of the 1981 French wine harvest are in, and the general judgment is there will be a significant improvement in quality compared to 1980, which was considered about average. However, the harvest has not been bountiful.

An estimated 140 million bottles of wine will be produced from this year's crop, compared to 177 million in 1980, which already was considered a below-average yield.

Here, where Moueix produces the highly-prized "grand cru" wines of the St. Emilion commune at his Chateau Pichon-Langevin, production may be down as much as 25 percent from last year.

About the same is anticipated for the Bourgogne region, where the wine is expected to exceed 1980 in quality but fall a bit short of the well-reviewed 1979 harvest.

Wine experts also look forward to this year's Beaujolais, which they say should be more uniform in quality than last year.

CFA-NCAA struggle hard to figure out

Understanding the battle between the NCAA and the College I.A. Association is as hard as figuring out BYU's General Education Program.

Most people are familiar with the CFA's $180 million television contract with NBC, which is in direct opposition to the NCAA's $263 million deal with CBS and ABC. What most fans don't know is the CFA-NCAA conflict has been brewing for a number of years.

Sports Line

By Kevin Stoker

The NCAA Division I-A, which includes BYU, consists of 137 schools. The division also consists of schools with either small or non-existent football programs. What upsets the CFA's 61 members is these smaller programs such as Slippery Rock State and DePaul, which don't even have football programs, have as much say in being major-college football as Notre Dame or Michigan.

These schools also receive a share of the television revenues that come from, for example, this weekend's Texas-Oklahoma football game -- a fact that doesn't make the big schools too happy.

The CFA, organized in the late '70s as a lobbying body of the top football schools within the NCAA, often had its proposals voted down by the general body.

BYU and the WAC have been members of the CFA since its inception.

Dick Camore, a columnist for The Denver Post, defended the CFA in a recent column.

"The CFA has been portrayed as greedy and selfish... but it should be pointed out that it has recommended... stricter recruiting controls, stronger academic progress requirements and other worthwhile programs. They were voted down by coalitions of non-football playing schools and smaller institutions where it reached the floor of the NCAA convention. So the CFA wants both a restructuring of the NCAA and the rights to institutional control of football telecasts. That's where the present battle is being waged."

The CFA's TV contract caused the NCAA to call an emergency convention, which is scheduled for early December. According to Sports Illustrated, the NCAA will discuss two issues: reorganization of Division I-A and restructuring television jurisdictional rights by division.

But recently, NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers said only reorganization would be discussed at the December convention and not television rights.

University of Oklahoma President Bill Banowsky, a leader in the CFA movement, told the Los Angeles Times two weeks ago it now appears Byers isn't about to give up control of college football's television rights and the issue will probably end up being decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The universities of Texas, Oklahoma and Georgia went to federal court to obtain injunctions prohibiting the NCAA from taking action against any CFA school.

A story by The Associated Press Wednesday said the latest development in this athletic soap opera is the CFA's new proposal to create a new division, Division IV, in the NCAA. Division IV would consist of all the members of the CFA, the Big Ten and the PAC-10.

The criteria for membership would be a minimum of eight varsity sports, including football, at least 70 percent of the football schedule against Division IV opposition; an average paid game attendance of 20,000 during the preceding three-year period; and a stadium with a minimum of 30,000 permanent seats. A school not meeting the criteria could still be a member if half the members of its particular conference met the requirements.

The CFA's latest proposal seems like the answer to the problem -- if the NCAA accepts it by the December convention. If the NCAA doesn't make the changes proposed by the CFA the matter will probably be turned over to the courts, and then who knows what will happen.

Hallgren brings experience to Y

By STACILEE FORD
Staff Writer

BYU has a Bjorn Borg of its own, or at least he's from Sweden.

Ola Hallgren, a tall, blond, 22-year-old Swede comes to the Cougars with an international tennis background. Hallgren has played throughout the world and was ranked recently as the 11th best tennis player in Sweden.

As a 10-year-old, Hallgren began playing on the Swedish National Junior Team. He competed for the team until he reached 15 years of age. He also competed in the Coupe Galen, a tournament similar to the Davis Cup, for players younger than 21 from the time he was 15 until he was 18.

Hallgren heard about BYU from former tennis team member Bruce Kiege. The two met while competing in a European tournament. When Hallgren expressed an interest in coming to America to play and attend school, Kiege played BYU.

Hallgren didn't seriously begin to consider BYU until he received a phone call from Cougar tennis coach Larry Hall. Hall offered to fly Hallgren to Provo for a whirlwind glimpse of what BYU had to offer him. Hallgren accepted the offer and flew in last March for a 48-hour visit packed with meetings with coaches, administrators and team members and quick tours of campus facilities and Provo.

"I didn't have more than 10 free minutes the whole time I was here," Hallgren said. After the two-day trip, Hallgren made his decision to attend BYU.

BYU is especially appealing to Hallgren because he can "combine an education with tennis experience," Hallgren says. If he had remained in Europe he would have had to choose one or the other.

A junior majoring in travel and tourism, Hallgren hopes to use the knowledge and exposure to other cultures while playing tennis. While Hallgren hopes to improve his game enough to break into the professional circuit, he is realistic in his expectations for the future. "You do as well as you can, and you can't do any better."

Adjustments have been many for Hallgren in the past few weeks. He recently completed one year of compulsory service in the Swedish military and, as a result, he is working to get used to the swing of things academically. Hall said that even though the adjustment is a hard one, Hallgren is handling it very well.

"He has a good rapport with the players," Hall says.

In addition to new surroundings, a new school and an entirely different culture, Hallgren is finding that even the game of tennis is something he is learning to adjust to. Most surfaces here are hardcourt, and Hallgren is used to clay court play.

Ola Hallgren, recently ranked as the 11th best player in Sweden, will be competing for the Cougar tennis team this year. Hallgren, who was heavily recruited by head coach Larry Hall, is trying to adjust to the hardcourt surfaces in America after playing mostly on clay in Sweden.

Astros nip L.A. in close thriller

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pinch-hitter Denny Walling's two-out, line-drive single into right-center field with the bases loaded in the bottom of the 11th inning carried the Houston Astros to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday and gave them a 2-0 edge in the National League West Division playoffs.

Walling's clutch hit on a 1-1 pitch from reliever Tom Niedenfur scored Phil Garner from third base with the winning run.

Tim Lincecum and Chris Speier combined for the go-ahead run in the second inning off Steve Carlton as the Montreal Expos beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-1 Wednesday in the first game of their best-of-five series for the National League East championship.

Armas finished a double through the legs of third baseman George Brett in the eighth, knocking in Dwayne

Pac-10 schools being probed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Just as they thought they were getting out of the woods, three Pacific 10 Conference schools are under scrutiny by the NCAA for possible rules violations in their athletic programs.

The three schools, Southern California, UCLA and Oregon, were placed on a year's probation last year by the conference. The University of Oregon also is on the NCAA probe list.

The investigation stems in part from last year's violation of academic rules that led to the conference penalties against the three schools, plus Oregon State and Arizona State.

Southern Cal Athletic Director Richard Perry said Tuesday that the NCAA has informed USC inquiry is being conducted "to determine the policies and practices of the university in certain areas of athletic administration."

Perry would not reveal the subject matter of the NCAA probe, but he said, "By and large it's a blow-up on the Pac 10 violations and may be expanded slightly beyond that. But they're not substantive in any opinion."

Magda Ferreira, a sophomore from Brasilia, Brazil, goes for a spike in action earlier this season. The Cougars are fourth in the country and take on Weber State tonight, Idaho State Friday and Utah State Saturday.

Y spikers' success a credit to coaches

The BYU women's volleyball team, with a 16-5 record and ranked fourth in the nation, begins conference matches Thursday in Ogden against Weber State.

Much of the early season success can be attributed to two new assistant coaches, Matt McShane and Carl McGown.

The team's success is gratifying for the coaches.

"It shows we're on the right road, that they're doing the right things as coaches," said McShane.

McShane, who is working on his doctorate degree in biomechanics, is from Santa Monica, Calif.

McGown is a professor in the College of Physical Education. He is from Long Beach, Calif.

"There are maybe eight teams in the country that could win the national championship. We are certainly one of those teams," McGown said.

Head coach Elaine Michaelis said both men are "exceptionally well-qualified and bring a lot of good volleyball experience into the program."

McGown coached the men's Olympic volleyball team from 1973 to 1976 and is currently a technical adviser to the USA Men's National team.

After graduating from BYU, McGown coached volleyball at Church College of Hawaii, now BYU-Hawaii, before attending the University of Oregon to work on a doctorate degree in psychology.

At the University of Oregon he coached the Ducks' volleyball team for three years.

"Carl is a good technical adviser with the expertise he has," said Michaelis. "Matt is a good player and works and relates well with the players."

McShane played volleyball at UC-Santa Barbara from 1973 to 1977.

He was a United States Volleyball Association collegiate all-American in 1974 and played on the USVBA collegiate open championship team the same year.

With three coaches there are advantages in "coverage and contact" with the players, said Michaelis. "There is input from each other's specialties."

Sophomore Lisa Mosen said, "They've mostly given us confidence. We have a lot of potential."

"It took us a while to believe them and then we started beating teams," said senior Lisa Mutes Combs.

The Cougars will play Idaho State Friday at 7 p.m. and 11th-ranked Utah State Saturday at 11 a.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

In the San Diego State Invitational the Cougars beat third-ranked Southern California, sixth-ranked San Diego State, and ninth-ranked Stanford to prove they were for real.

Golfers come in second

BYU's NCAA championship golf team began defense of its title by shooting its way to a second place finish at the first annual Butler Invitational held last week in Oakbrook, Ill.

Keith Clearwater led the Cougar contingent with a score of 236 and finished in a tie for fifth with Greg Peterson from the University of Illinois and Greg Solshy from Ohio State.

Solshy's teammate, Chris Perry, walked away with medalist honors on the course which is the site of the Western Open on the PGA tour.

Wednesday the team, under the tutelage of NCAA Coach of the Year Karl Tucker, tied off in the Jim Corbett Intercollegiate tournament in Baton Rouge, La., against a 14-team field which included perennial collegiate golf powers Houston, Oral Roberts, Oklahoma State and Texas.

Y communications department praises Bonneville Corp. executive

The president of Bonneville International Corporation, Arch Madsen, was honored for his service to BYU and lauded for his contributions to worldwide communications services by the department of communications at a dinner Wednesday night.

Madsen is also the co-chairman of World Press Freedom Committee and recipient of the National Association of Broadcasters' Distinguished Service Award.

Madsen told the audience that BYU "will be the top rated school of communication."

Through Bonneville International, Madsen has helped BYU students learn how to effectively communicate, said Brent D. Peterson, BYU communications department chairman.

Madsen said in his acceptance speech, "BYU will help thrust ahead throughout the world. Communications will expand and expand in unlimited frontiers."

The freedom of communication, the Third World countries was a concern expressed by Madsen.

A significant part of the world has restricted knowledge of the truth of the Free World's economic system," he said.

Large number of coyote attacks lead L.A. officials to declare war

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Recent attacks by coyotes, including the killing of a 3-year-old girl, have led authorities to declare war on these animals roaming the streets of several Los Angeles area cities.

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors Tuesday directed the county's two part-time trappers to capture and shoot coyotes in and around West Covina — the seventh city where the trappers have been assigned to stamp out the coyotes.

Paul Engler, the county agricultural commissioner, said coyotes "commonly take cats and puppies," and while human attacks are rare, she warned that the coyotes are becoming increasingly bold.

Woman files lawsuit in Moab explosion

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Another lawsuit has been filed in U.S. District Court in Salt Lake City in the wake of a July 31 propane gas explosion in Moab that killed five people.

The suit was filed by Twila Kaye Davies of Montrose, Colo., and seeks $12 million in damages. Her husband, Ralph Davies, and two children, Michael, 5, and Richard, 7, died as a result of the explosion.

Mrs. Davies filed the suit on behalf of herself and other heirs of her husband's, including four surviving children.

Defendant in the suit is Buckeye Gas Products Co., a Delaware corporation.

The suit seeks general damages of $10 million and special damages of $2 million. The suit also seeks $14,000 for property damage.

More bodies pulled out of downed plane

TOOELE, Utah (AP) — A rescue team Wednesday recovered two more bodies from the wreckage of a light plane that crashed into a rocky ledge in the Sheeprock Mountains of western Utah.

A spokeswoman for the Tooele County Sheriff's Office said that the team, led by Sheriff Walt Schubert, was hiking down with the bodies. The group is expected to reach Tooele sometime Wednesday night.

One body was found late Tuesday before the search was called off because of darkness. The spokeswoman said none of the bodies have been identified.

The wreckage is believed to be that of a plane missing since Sunday with three Oxnard, Calif., residents aboard. The wreckage was spotted by a Civil Air Patrol plane just west of Vernon and about 40 miles north of Delta.

The CAP had been searching for a twin-engine plane flown by Skip Richards, 38. It carried Richards' father, Bill Richards, 40, and the pilot's son, Danny Richards, 19. The plane was reported missing on a flight from Riverton, Wyo., to Oxnard.

The CAP said the Cessna 310 took off from Evanston, Wyo., Sunday morning after refueling. CAP officials said the wreckage was located by searchers after an emergency aircraft-locator transmission was heard.

Watt appointee slammed for memo

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man Interior Secretary James Watt picked to be acting director of the Office of Surface Mining once sent out a memo lumping environmentalists with homosexuals and "other ideological enemies."

The 1976 memo was made public by an environmental group, which said it was the type of people Watt has chosen to place in positions of authority at the Interior Department.

However, the official, Andrew V. Bailey, said that while he signed the memo, he had not read the inflammatory language.

"I must have signed it without reading it. It was prepared by somebody else. I would know better, even if I thought it, to put something like that in writing," he said.

The memo, sent by Bailey when he was chief of the branch of mining operations in the U.S. Geological Survey, was critical of an environmental impact statement written on a proposed strip mine in Wyoming.

"I must have signed it without reading it. It was prepared by somebody else. I would know better, even if I thought it, to put something like that in writing," he said.

A student in pursuit of a world record feces a platoon of peeled bananas. Although a record wasn't set for banana eating, history was made when Dennis McAfee ate 100 peanuts, one at a time, in 42 seconds. Homecoming activities continue today with Blue and White Day.

Y students go 'ape' at record breaking

By SARA OAKLEY
Staff Writer

Students gathered on the ELWC West Patio to challenge world eating records on Record Breaking Day Wednesday.

Cheers went up from the crowd as eight hungry students attacked 17 peeled bananas on the plates in front of them. Two minutes later, the representative from Sportsmen, Jim Elizondo, referred to by the crowd as "Jungle Jim," was announced the winner. He did not, however, break the world record. Elizondo, a junior majoring in business finance from Fort Wayne, Ind., managed to eat 12 bananas. "I just couldn't speed up any more to finish the last five."

Clark Clifford, a freshman majoring in communications from Arcadia, Calif., said, looking at his plate of bananas before starting, "I'm already sick."

When a bystander was encouraged to enter the contest, he said, looking at the mounds of peeled bananas, "I'm not that hungry."

Sandwich eating

On another table, plates piled 20 sandwiches high were waiting for the "go" signal before being attacked by four sandwich-eating contestants.

To break the world record, the winner needed to consume 40 sandwiches. Gary Sanderson came the closest by downing 22 jelly-and-butter sandwiches.

Sanderson, a sophomore majoring in civil engineering from Nampa, Idaho, said he felt if he had more time he could have finished both plates. "I've always been a good eater," he said. "You should see me with noodles."

Also entered in the sandwich-eating contest were Lars and Monica Seng, a brother-and-sister team from Albuquerque, N.M. Miss Seng hardly set a new record with her consumption of two sandwiches.

Eleven participants entered the peanut-eating contest. Plates of 100 peanuts each were placed in front of each contestant. The goal was to eat them, one at a time, in less than 46 seconds. The record was attempted by two students at a time.

New world's record

A new world's record was set by Dennis McAfee, a sophomore majoring in pre-law from Rock Springs, Wyo., who ate the peanuts in 42 seconds, four seconds faster than the old record. He said he felt he gave a flawless performance. "I've always wanted to be in the record book."

The new record did not just come by luck—McAfee said he did practice a little for the event.

Cheers went up for Bob Gregory, a junior majoring in zoology from Seal Beach, Calif., as he cleared his plate in 45 seconds. When asked how he felt, Gregory was unable to respond, because of the 100 peanuts still wedged in his mouth.

Disappointed at not setting a world's record, Gregory said, "Nobody told me I had to swallow them."

Coming in at a close second was Mike Peterson, a senior majoring in business management from Barrington, Ill. Peterson managed to clear his plate in 43.1 seconds.

Rare painting donated to Y

"Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn," a painting by 19th-century Massachusetts artist Dr. William Rimmer, was presented to the BYU collection by the anonymous donor from Washington, D.C., according to J. Clifflin, director of the HPAF art gallery.

1946 article

From an article that appeared in the July 1946 issue of Town and Country magazine, arts writer Lincoln Kirstein said he felt the figure in the well-preserved oil appear to be representations of Rimmer's wife and his father, who believed himself to be the son of Louis XVI and thought he was destined to be Louis XVII of France.

Major source

BYU's major source on Rimmer is Jeffrey Weidman, an Indiana curator who is completing a doctoral dissertation at the University of Illinois on Rimmer's life and works.

A letter from Weidman received by the art department, said the painting received its title from Weidman, who noted the painting appeared to be the first in a series of Shakespeare-related works by Rimmer, who was primarily known in his time as a sculptor and teacher of anatomy.

Rimmer important

"Rimmer was a tremendously important man in his day, but has become peripheral mostly because those who own Rimmers, either in museums or private collections, are not putting them on the market," Weidman said. Because of this it is hard to assess the value of the paintings.

The canvas is unsigned and undated, because of the style of the painting and a local canvas seller's mark on the back, Weidman dates the painting around 1845.

Various campus activities celebrate Homecoming

Homecoming events for today begin at 10 a.m. with a Take Ten concert in the ELWC Memorial Lounge. The group Eclipse will be the featured entertainment.

Also at 10 a.m. an ASBYU Academics Office lecture will be given in the HPAF's de Jong Concert Hall by Richard Hornor. The theme of the lecture is "Violence in Sports."

Noontime activities feature the band Thunder-buck Ram, which will perform on the ELWC West Patio while students eat lunch.

A pep rally at the West Stadium Parking Lot will conclude the day's activities at 2:30 p.m. Featured at the rally will be the Cougar Band, Pep Squad and football coach LaVell Edwards along with the members of his team.

The contest for on-campus dorm decorations continues. The final judging will be at noon Friday.

Violence-in-sports lecture to be given

Richard Harrow, chairman of the American Bar Association Task Force on Sports Violence, poses by his book "Violence in Sports." Harrow will be speaking today at 10 a.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall.

"Violence in Sports" will be the topic of a lecture given by Richard Harrow, chairman of the American Bar Association Task Force on Sports Violence, today at 10 a.m. in the HFAC de Jong Concert Hall.

The lecture will include 22 minutes of action-packed film clips with examples of violent acts, according to the ASBYU Academics Office.

Harrow, who is also author of the book "Violence in Sports," will discuss the problem of professional athletes deliberately injuring opponents.

In 1980, Harrow assisted Rep. Ronald M. Mottl, in introducing a bill that attempts to define excessive physical force in a sports event and assess appropriate penalties.

According to the bill, "excessive" is a force having no reasonable relationship to the competitive goals of the sport.

Boom-town syndrome

Growth causes mental strain

THERMOPOLIS, Wyo. (AP) — At the root of many energy-related mental health problems is the conflict between longtime residents and newcomers to Wyoming towns, a University of Wyoming human services authority says.

A survey of six Wyoming boom towns indicated the biggest problems are alcoholism and domestic violence, especially child abuse and wife beating, said Judith Davenport.

But underlying these problems is the "we-did-it-first" attitude between ranchers and ranchers, longtime residents against newcomers, she said.

The attitude can be destructive, she said mental-health workers at a conference here this week. "If they see it as the other person's problem, then the community has a big problem," she said.

Ms. Davenport said the survey showed those who resent the rapid growth often are those who have moved to the town to escape pressures of urban life.

She said the phenomenon of the modern boom town threatens to become part of popular culture, with no real end in sight. She said it may even be the topic of a film action. Next, she said, community leaders become concerned with what cannot keep pace with the development, and that concern grows.

The fourth stage comes when community begins working out constructive solutions, she said.

Pickup uses hay pellets for gas

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — Fred Beierle figures his pickup truck is running on about 15 pounds of hay pellets a mile.

Beierle, president of the Pioneer Wash, based Pyrene Inc., adds that his truck could also run on pellets made of pulp mill sludge or even manure.

Pyrene has developed a device to turn such "biomass wastes" into synthetic gasoline that can not only power motor vehicles, but provide space heat and generate electricity.

On a recent stop in Coeur d'Alene on route to Missoula, Mont., for a Bonneville Power Administration energy symposium, Beierle talked about his company and its gasification process.

Simply put, the procedure involves heating dried fuel pellets until they smoke and then purifying the smoke until it in turn can be used as fuel.

Rally rules: no booing, cheering
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — the ground rules of all candidate rally sponsored by the Bucares Democratic Club were tough: no booing, no cheering.

"Anyone who boos a candidate will be arrested and prosecuted to the full extent of the law," program chairman Allen Goldberg promised Monday night. "It's not money, words; it's a promise. You will be arrested immediately for disturbing the peace. I can make these charges stick."

Beierle concedes the gasification process itself isn't new. What is new is Pyrene's secret demonstration model, a process that prevents and although it works the previously fine, it isn't designed for a motor vehicle.

Beierle says an atomizer of the process, gasification unit would weigh about 300 pounds.

But driving a truck powered by the gasification process has its problems, too. Getting the rig started, for instance, first requires getting the fuel produced under way, he says.

He says the only by-product of the process is water and a little ash that makes good fertilizer.

U.S. views courts in Chinese system

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — In Chinese courts, confession is not only good for the soul, but virtually a necessity for a lenient sentence.

That's the report from Attorney General David Leroy, who recently got back from a two-week trip to the People's Republic of China.

Leroy and top legal officers from 13 other states went to China to exchange ideas on updating the Chinese legal system.

The U.S. visitors found in Chinese courts: — There is no presumption that an accused person is innocent until proven guilty.

— The defense counsel's main role is to insure trial procedures are correct, not resisting the prosecutor's case.

— The police have administrative authority to investigate crimes and to jail accused persons for up to three years without formal court proceedings.

About 97 percent of the people on trial confess and give a full explanation for their crimes. The court's assumption is that unless the accused has confessed his crime, he can't be rehabilitated.

The trial itself is closer to a U.S. sentencing hearing after a guilty plea.

Leroy said the touring state legal officers observed a Shanghai Municipal Court trial of a foreigner charged with stealing $2,500 worth of brass parts, which he sold on the black market for $90.

He said the defense attorney was "quite effective and vigorous" within the system, in pointing out factors favorable to the defendant.

In the end, the man confessed and was sentenced to four years in prison.

TV heroes' bad habits may make viewers sick

OSTON (AP) — Television's of the bravery hero who looses liquor, grabs quick snacks and gets fat or sick may cause poor attitudes in TV addicts, a study concludes.

The researchers say people who watch television many hours a day likely to adopt the nonchalant, less outlook of the characters popular prime-time TV.

The more people watch television, the more complacent they are in health and exercise and the confidence they have in the medical profession, said George Miller, one of the researchers.
There is an unrealistic belief in the powers of medicine. They if anything goes wrong, they will take care of it.

The researchers said people only get more health information from TV dramas than where else.

The cultivation of complacency, aided with an unrealistic belief in magic of medicine, is likely to cause unhealthy lifestyles and to leave both patients and health professionals vulnerable to disappointment, frustration and litigation," they wrote.

The study was conducted at the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania, where researchers watched a week of prime-time and weekend programs and conducted surveys of viewers.

Their results, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, show: "Prime-time characters are not only healthy (though often vulnerable to inflicted injury) but despite all the mayhem, eating and drinking are also relatively sober, safe from accidents and slim at all ages."

The researchers found that TV characters eat, drink or talk about food eight times an hour. They grab a fast snack almost as often as they eat breakfast, lunch and dinner combined.

Despite the poor eating habits, less than 5 percent of the male TV characters and 2 percent of the female characters were overweight.

Utah's largest employers meet women at Job Fair

Twenty of Utah's largest employers will be gathering in Salt Lake City on Saturday for Job Fair conference designed to assist women interested in employment opportunities and career potentials to state.

The conference, which is sponsored by the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women and headed by Gov. Scott Matheson, described by organizers as open to women between 18 and 35 years of age.

The conference is scheduled to be held at Highland High School, 1500 East, Salt Lake City, starting from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.
Registration will be $10 a person for those who want meals and $5 for those who don't.

We feel each group has something to offer the other," said Sherrill Box, a commission member from the Cottonwood area in Salt Lake City.

"We set this this up so that women can have a chance to go talk with the employers that will be represented," she said. "We want the employers to know that a lot of qualified women out there."

Employers were selected from a list of businesses that employ more than 200 people each, Mrs. Box said.

The day's activities will begin at 9 a.m. with registration and a continental breakfast.

State Sen. Frances Farley, D-Salt
Lake, will speak at 9 a.m.
Workshops will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Mrs. Box said at a similar conference titled "New Horizons for Utah Women" last year in January.
The response was so great some had to be turned away at the door. This conference has been organized on a larger scale so those who want to can register at the door.

Stolen car taken by mistake

A JOLIA, Calif. (AP) — Vice chancellor Joseph Watson "stole" a car from the University of California at San Diego official was due at a court. His secretary handed him the keys and pointed to a car parked in the lot.

Watson got into the wrong car by mistake, although the ignition key was his. Meanwhile, Chancellor and Akimov discovered his car missing.

The incident last week was reported to campus police and they found Akimov's car parked in front of the library where Watson had left it. It was driven to the campus police station to be dusted for prints.

Watson, meanwhile, couldn't find the car after the meeting and also reported it stolen. He said he had been merely taken the wrong one.

General Moonlight rules must be obeyed

An employer has a right to expect loyal service of his employees, to expect that such employees not engage in outside activities that interfere with their efficiency on the job. Minimal effort is not enough.

BYU faculty and staff members agree, as a condition of their employment, to follow policies set by the administration. Some of these policies deal with conflicts of interest. University policy says employees are to give a full measure of time, talent and loyalty to BYU. Full-time employees are expected to maintain high levels of productivity for a minimum of 40 hours work per week. Any activity or work pattern which reduces productivity is in conflict with the employer's obligation.

Faculty members sometimes engage in consulting, an outside activity the university permits as long as it benefits the university. However, when a full-time employee engages in outside activities which he is paid to disclose it to his university superior for evaluation of propriety.

Occasionally students have cited cases of professors meeting with them a few times at the beginning of the semester, giving term assignments, and then dismissing class for the remainder of the semester to allow classes to work on such term assignments. In such cases the students might as well take correspondence courses.

We do not suggest that outside consulting is necessarily inappropriate. Consulting can increase the knowledge and skill of an instructor by giving him contact with the non-university world.

Students complain that some instructors are so busy with outside commitments that they frequently dismiss their classes. This may teach students that lack of commitment to one's employer is acceptable.

Those who are too busy to fulfill their work commitments at BYU should leave the university and devote themselves entirely to the interests which have drawn them away from their work here. But contributing to this problem are students who encourage their professors to cancel classes or dismiss them early when the day's work is yet incomplete.

Most university professors seek to maintain the integrity of their positions. They seek to honor their commitments to the university by giving their students to the students who each pay hundreds of dollars every semester in tuition.

Instructors and students alike should examine their activities and cooperate with each other in achieving their goals at BYU. Instructors should teach, giving a full measure of time, talents and loyalty. Students should learn in like manner.

Even worse, it reflects some rather insensitive attitudes about economic conditions and higher education. In the development of such attitudes of paternalism and financial elitism what is meant by the slogan, "Let's make BYU the Harvard of the West."

WHO'S HE, A SCALPER? NO HE'S THE RECRUITER FOR SOME ENGINEERING FIRM, TRYING TO HAND OUT FOR THE HOME-COMING GAME? NO JOB APPLICATIONS!

BYU students are being lured away from their studies by a new type of recruitment. It's called "recruiting" and it's being done by a group of students who are trying to get other students to join their "firms" for the coming year.

These "firms" are usually made up of students who are interested in a particular field of study or career. They are usually formed during the summer months and are active during the school year.

Editor: We feel deep sorrow at the loss of Euphonia Bessie Ann Sadat. Sorrow for the loss of a great leader, a man of peace, sorrow that political intolerance continues to breed violence and bloodshed in our world. Editor: With no small amount of disgust that morning after morning I drive from one Y parking lot to another. And most aggravating of all is the seemingly hundreds of empty stalls that mockingly stare from the A and G lots. Has it ever occurred to the powers that be in the parking lot planning department, that there aren't that many faculty and graduate students who require the preferred parking allotted to them?

Granted, I am a low tuition paying undergraduate and will probably be back for many years hence, and granted I would never rob others of a higher right, but may I throw out a suggestion to anyone interested?

A parking status is given to faculty and staff who, due to the nature of their employment, usually come in the early part of the day. We not give their parking lots and up-for-grabs status after 10 a.m.

This way unused parking spaces could be used when the Y lots are filled.

Concerning G lots, the simple survey of the vacancy or nonvacancy of spaces on a random set of days would allow for setting of an equitable and fair up-for-grabs policy as suggested by the A lot.

I find one other great advantage to these suggestions. There will not be any more of those inequitable payments on parking citations by students who are too mad to pay and hence they only parked illegally as an act of desperation.

Editor: A few of the more progressive students on campus have adopted an interest in modern music. Ordinarily this interest is reflected in many ways, including styles of clothing and hair. The new wave in music and fashion has been heralded world-wide as an innovative and invigorating new movement.

Why then do these students encounter so much hostility on their shoulders as Christian campus? For one, do not appreciate crude remarks and derogative looks which are the result of their Xerox models of the status quo!

What can we expect from the older generation when the younger generation is so resistant to change.

Editor: I didn't notice that the card stunt section was missing at the BYU-Alt Force camps. I've never seen the card stunt section. I've always seen it in the student section.

I did notice that my tickets for this season are pretty good - far better than I've ever had before. And they were obtained with less hassle than ever before. That's great.

But I wouldn't want to "miss one of the traditions important to a well-rounded college career." I consider the proposal to move the BYU-Alt Force band absurd. They come to school every week to practice. They work hard for their seats and they deserve them.

So here's my idea. If the card stunt section were put in the south end zone, everybody (except, of course, the south end zone) could see them. I could round out my college career! And the team and the university would have the support of all those die-hard Cougar fans.

Of course, if the card stunt section is really composed of people who just want to be guaranteed the seats, then we'll have problems. But we all know that's not the case, right?

Local buses bear own expenses

The Provo City Lines is perhaps only place a transportation service encouraged to get closer than an arm's length away from a B.

And for her part, the good woman who is working to move the University Mail to the building parking lot, than even another bus fare increase.

It has been said, "You get what you pay for." In Provo's case it is a bit different.

Although a government subsidy public utility will continue to be a major part of the city's transportation. Provo and Orem will continue to have one of the best services in the state, but they are limited by lack of funds and passenger volume.

Non-LDS ostracized

A stranding theme of the General Conference last week was missionary work. Expected was that LDS Church members must fellowship those who are not LDS.

What meaning does this have for the LDS Church, which is the beginning of this sense of the BYU community, where the overwhelming majority is LDS?

When so one responded, he said, "Good, then I can't imagine why we should have students talk differently with audiences of LDS members. But comments that they be encouraged shouldn't be made at this time."

Declarations statements, especially other church leaders, were made. They have no place, yet they can be heard in class.

One male who had invited the church in high school decided to leave his freshman year, withdrew after a few weeks by the grace of the LDS Church in a BYU environment. He joined the LDS Church, not of his experience here, but of his.

Members of other faiths find themselves ambivalent when they are discovered. But if their faith does not follow, or follow fast if they may find themselves as quickly as they were expelled.

If someone does join church, he may discover he has been abandoned as his LDS friends to find new LDS friends. If he doesn't, or if he does, he may find himself in a difficult position. They must also be able to do this.

Court ties Watt's hands

Last Thursday, Interior Secretary James G. Watt dropped into Salt Lake City during a one-week tour of the Western States. Watt spoke at a public hearing on the proposed federal land management plan, appeared at a press conference and addressed 700 Interior Department employees at the Salt Palace. Often accused of siding with business against the environment, Watt said he was one of the most aggressive advocates of park and wilderness areas ever to serve in the Interior Department.

Without comment, environmentalists gathered for a noon rally arranged by the Utah Wilderness Association, Utah Audubon Society and the Utah Chapter of the Sierra Club in front of the Federal Building in Salt Lake City. By protesting Watt's actions, these people showed their concern for the need to maintain the natural beauty of Utah.

Watt recently asked the Federal District Court to remand a case concerning strip mining near Bryce Canyon to the Department of the Interior so that he could review the case and make another decision.

Power, two million acres of the area, proposed to strip mine coal in the Altamont Coal Fields in southern Utah. Last year, however, environmentalists and residents in southern Utah protested against the proposal.

ministry because of the visibility impact the mining fields would have on the environment. The National Park. The strip mining fields would be within five to seven miles of the park, the closest point. Protesters also worry about the negative effect strip mining would have on their water supply.

Secretary Cecil Andrus, Watt's predecessor, found the proposal unsatisfactory. As a result, several lawsuits were filed by both parties. And because of the court's decision, Watt wants to review the case.

Many claim Watt is encouraging energy production in the name of the national park. But there really isn't anything Watt can do about the situation as long as the court doesn't decide to turn the case back to him. If the court decides to remand the case, Watt will be given an opportunity to prove himself to be a true environmentalist.
